“Finally, I have found something to eat,” said a hungry fox when he found a piece of meat. Quickly, he seized the meat between his teeth and rushed towards his home. On his way back, he walked past a hen yard. There he saw four fowls and his mouth watered. He kept the piece of meat on the ground and gazed at the fowls, hungrily. “What are you looking at ?” asked a jackal who walked by him. “Friend, I have found this piece of meat. Then I saw these fowls and ...” said the fox, longingly. “Forget about them. A boy who takes care of them will never let you touch them,” said the jackal.
